Our Product Introduction

Product Description

Global Popular Hormone Powder Progesterone CAS 57-83-0 with Fast Delivery

The main physiological effects of progesterone:

- 1. Progesterone can maintain the female animal pregnancy, and cause a series of physiological changes, such as inhibition of female estrus.
- 2. Progesterone has the power to promote the thickening of the lining of the uterus, promote the bending of the gland and to increase secretion function.
- 3. Progesterone can inhibit the peristalsis of the uterus, and contribute to the cervix contraction, secretion of mucus, etc..

 These physiological changes provide suitable environment for the operation, growth and development of early embryos, as well as the continued growth of the fetus.
- 4. Small amount of progesterone is also used in combination with the hormone to promote female estrus. The synergy between progesterone and prolactin can promote the development of mammary glands.
- 5. Progesterone is involved in the feedback regulation of the hypothalamus and anterior pituitary, which makes the balance of the animal reproductive hormones. In vivo, progesterone content of all sorts of livestock follicular phase is below 1 ng/ml, while in bovine corpus luteum period is approximately 4 ng/ml, pregnancy period is about 18 ng/ml.
